

RELAXING DOWN WEST

On Rebel Lady, a Classic Gentleman's Yacht.

Great British charters, relaxing down west... The south coasts of Devon and Cornwall have some of the finest, most relaxing cruising waters in Britain, its wonderful rivers and picture-book harbours providing effortless enjoyment with few complications. The West Country has a slow pace of life, just what you need on a precious week's holiday.

Down here you can indulge the art of pottering, spending time slowly in magical places between comfortably short passage hops.

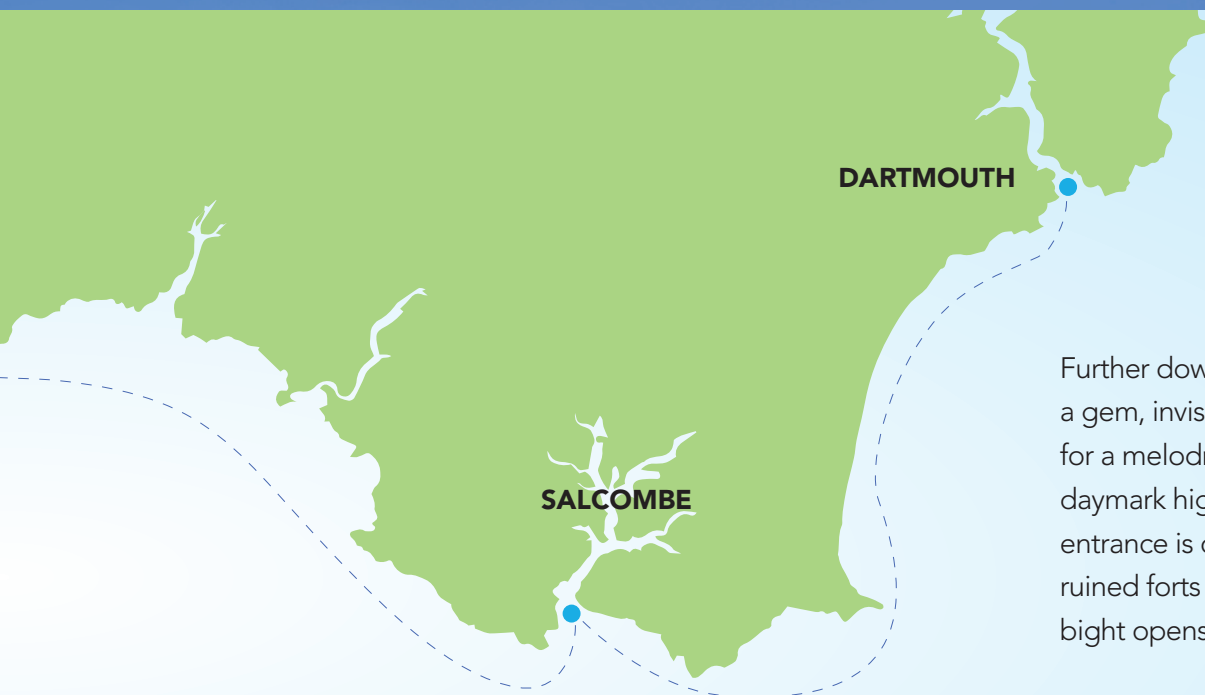

Devon and Cornish rivers are ideal for this and there is nothing to compare with meandering up the River Dart, anchoring in Salcombe estuary or simply lazing on deck and gazing around in sleepy Newton Ferrers or bustling Fowey.

The 60ft classic Rebel Lady has just the right leisured style for West Country cruising. Based at Dart Marina, this impeccably maintained Van Lent motor yacht has a strong, seaworthy steel hull, opulent teak superstructure and the elegant accommodation you would expect from her renowned Dutch builder.

Powered by two 120hp DAF diesels, she is stabilised by Vosper fins and is quiet and comfortable at sea. While her charters are all skippered, more experienced parties can participate fully in the cruising and effectively become the owners of this aristocratic ship for a memorable week.

You join Rebel Lady on a Sunday afternoon and aim to be back at Dart Marina in time for Friday sundowners. The first day's treat is cruising at easy displacement speed around the sweep of Start Bay.

Further down into Cornwall, Fowey is a gem, invisible from seaward except for a melodramatic red-and-white daymark high on Gribbin Head. The entrance is quite narrow between two ruined forts before the wide harbour bight opens out as if by magic.

You pass Blackpool Sands, fringed with pines like a slice of the Riviera, and then the two-mile beach at Slapton curving out towards Start Point. Arriving at Salcombe is a million-dollar experience as you turn in past Sunny Cove beneath prosperous residential slopes.

In the Yealm you lie alongside a snug pontoon with views around the miniature wooded estuary and Newton Ferrers' jumbled village. Plymouth Sound is another great day, a naval roadstead with a colourful past and then the Tamar River gliding inland past old dockyards and secret creeks.

Friday evening is a crowning finale as Rebel Lady slips into Dartmouth's steep-sided valley past fantastic layers of houses climbing above the river. Up ahead, Britannia Royal Naval College stands proudly in its rolling green acres, one of England's most inspiring maritime vistas.

Rebel lady is permanently berthed at the stunning Dart Marina Hotel with its river view restaurant and spa facilities. Day cruises to Torquay, Salcombe and Burgh Island are all great places to visit.

Skipper Mark Taylor has years of experience with all sorts of craft and is supported by a dedicated team of artisans, each with specialist skills. Mark will ensure that your catering requirements are dealt with and liaise over your travel plans.

Ideal for eight day guests or four when cruising, Rebel Lady can also accommodate seven persons when static in port enjoying an event like the famous Dartmouth Regatta

When cruising with a full crew only four guests in two cabins is possible. Depending on experience and if you would like to be more hands on, six guests can be accommodated.

Rebel Lady retains much of the original equipment that you would expect to find in a classic that is now fifty years old. Inclusive of harbour fees, fuel and crew the typical cost will be:

£1,500 FOR A ONE-DAY CRUISE or £4,850 FOR A FIVE-DAY CRUISE (plus VAT)
